VOLUME FIFTY-ONE PLACERVILLE, EL DORADO COUNTY, CALIFORNIA WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1941 NUMBER 116

BEHIND The scenes in BUSINESS BY JOHN CRADDOCK

STEPPING ALONG—Retail businesses still zooming, with nation's department store sales 14 per cent ahead of last year for the first five months of 1941... total employment in the United States hit an all-time high of 50,150,000 in April, reports the National Industrial Conference Board—and at the same time unemployment dropped to 5,412,000, which is the lowest for any April since 1930... Defense industry had several pieces of good news: Production of aircraft engines in May is figured at 3,500 units, about 1,100 more than the January total... Lockheed claims all-time American record for first five months of this year, building and delivering $45,871,500 worth of planes, more than it produced in the whole year of 1940... General Electric has completed the turbine for the battleship South Dakota, and its being launched more than a month ahead of schedule... Equipment for another battle-wagon, the Massachusetts, is 10 weeks ahead of schedule... And the public bought $441,782,000 worth of defense savings bonds and stamps in May, first month they were on sale.

"RECESSITIES"—Words are born (or, like Topsey, just grow) when new conditions seem to demand them. "Ludspeaker" is one. "Airsick" and "columnist" are others. Even "jive." Now, in the aluminum industry, a new word has been coined which you may be hearing more and more. It's "recessities"—substitutes that civilian industries are patriotically seeking, even though they don't fit the bill, to replace materials now under defense priorities, during the RECESS until producers can again get caught up with combined defense and civilian demand. Aluminum Company of America reports that peace time America, from 1930 to 1938, could find use for only 14 million pounds of aluminum a month, and that in busy 1939 the company had to make only 27 million pounds a month to satisfy civilian needs. Suddenly defense needs alone became 40 million pounds a month and are soon expected to go to 50 and beyond. The company is rushing to completion a self-financed $200,000,000 national defense expansion program. Even so, civilians will have to continue finding "recessities" as long as defense demands require all or most of the nation's aluminum.

SPARTAN COACH LAUDS CARSTEN

Camino Youth Transfers
To San Jose State, Shows
Grid Wares In Practice

SAN JOSE—When you call the name Carsten these days, turn around and smile, brother, for Chet "The Cowboy" Carsten is just about the hottest thing to hit San Jose State College in many a moon. The big rugged kid from Placerville has been the sensation of Spring training that recently closed at San Jose.

The Spartan coaching staff has gone overboard for the Cowboy in a big way. Carsten came to San Jose as a transfer from Sacramento, J. C., where he had made a reputation as a top notch end. Head Coach Ben Winkelman took one look at the six foot one inch giant who tips the scales at 195 pounds, and promptly decided to make a fullback of him.

Now that the preliminary practice sessions are over, and Carsten has been put through the test, Winkelman has issued a statement that is nothing short of sensational.

"Carsten," he says, "is one of the greatest natural fullbacks that I have seen in 18 years of coaching and playing football."

Even Pop Warner, the old fox himself, advisory coach for the Spartans, is enthusiastic over Chet's chances to make good. Warner and Winkelman won't say that Chet will be the first string fullback when the season opens, but both agree that the Cowboy will see plenty of action. Chet is expected to share honors with Fred "Bulldog" Lindsay from Berkeley. Carsten's passing and running have left nothing to be desired, but he is still a little weak in the punting department.

A hard worker and an able pupil, Chet expects to polish up the rough edges of kicking this summer by taking a ball home with him and practicing.

That's why you smile when you say the name Carsten.

FRESH POND WORKER IS HOSPITALIZED FOR MILL INJURY

X-Rays were taken at a Sacramento hospital Wednesday morning to determine the extent of injuries suffered Tuesday at the mill of the Placerville Lumber Company at Fresh Pond by Charles E. Wright.

Wright was working on the carriage in the mill when he was hit in the back of the neck by a large hook. He was removed to the hospital in the Orelli ambulance and no report had been received early Wednesday as to the nature of the injury as revealed by the x-ray.

PARADE PLANS ON SATURDAY OUTLINED

Units Form On Union Street
Near Fruit House; March
Begins At 5:30 O'Clock

Units participating in the community parade Saturday evening, which has been arranged under the sponsorship of El Dorado Chapter, Order of De Molay, are being asked to form the parade on Union Street near the P. F. G. A. fruit shed, prepared to march at 5:30 o'clock.

According to those in charge, the station in the parade which has been assigned to the various floats and marching bodies which will be in the line of march, will be designated by cards and numbers at the place of forming the procession.

City police asked the co-operation of the public generally to the end that the congestion of traffic following the parade may be minimized as much as possible.

Led by the Sacramento De Molay band, the parade will swing from Union Street onto Locust Street and thence to Main and westerly to Lower Main Street.

Police suggested that if those who participate will co-operate by returning to the main business section by various routes, or by delaying their return by the most direct route for several minutes so as to give traffic an opportunity to clear, it will materially assist in the relief of traffic congestion.

Robert Woodward, acting master councilor for El Dorado Chapter of the Order of De Molay and general chairman of arrangements for the weekend meeting of the Sacramento Valley Division of De Molay, in connection with which the parade has been arranged, reports that advance reservations promise a large attendance for the Saturday and Sunday sessions of the three-day meeting.

Howard B. Tom is the store manager. Mr. Tom has been identified with the organization's store in Marysville. The concern also operates a store at Auburn.

In preparation for opening the Placerville store, the quarters have been remodeled to meet the requirements of Capital Dollar Stores.

Large display windows 12 feet deep have been built in on either side of the front door, and special fluorescent lighting fixtures installed in each. Modern fixtures throughout, with low easy-to-serve shelves, and neatly arranged display tables.

The dress department has been arranged at the rear of the store under the balcony and special fluorescent lighting installed. Two conveniently arranged "try-on" rooms are available. Office quarters have been arranged on the balcony, with a display shelf in front for displaying better quality dresses.

Mr. And Mrs. Dodds Have Bouncing Baby Boy

If any of those who attended the high school graduation seemed to feel that Walter E. Dodds was hardly his natural self, they probably were right.

A birth certificate of record Wednesday at the office of County Recorder James Sweeney reveals that Mr. and Mrs. Dodds became the parents of a son, Edward James Dodds, on graduation day, June 6th. "E. J." arrived at Placerville Sanatorium.

C. E. Whittle, of Kelsey, found guilty of malicious mischief, was given a ninety-day suspended sentence before Justice of the Peace Maybelle Timm, at Jelsey. Whittle is said to have been tampering with water lines leading to one of the Kelsey mines.

LOCHINVAR IN RAGS
by KATHRYN CULVER
Copyright 1940 by Kathryn Culver, Placerville, Cal.

Julie Hamilton, small-town Southern girl, regrets her engagement to Kenneth Terry. When she meets Barry Caldwell, impoverished young Westerner, they fall in love and she breaks her engagement to Kenneth. A little later, however, to prevent a fight between Barry and Kenneth, she desperately tells Barry she has merely been flirting with him. The next day, she tries to explain but, before she has a chance to convince him that she lied to him, he goes away embittered. She is dismayed. Several weeks later, when she learns that he is singing at the Polli Parrot Cafe in Atlanta, she drives to Atlanta, gets in touch with an old beau, Duke Chalmers, a newspaper reporter, and asks him to take her to the Polli Parrot.

CHAPTER XXII

DUKE CHALMERS, though a hard-working reporter, was to appearance the very personification of the idle young man about town. Handsome, always faultlessly dressed, gay and debonair, he was exceedingly popular with the ladies. But no one girl was important to Duke. He passed from one to another in rapid succession. He enjoyed feminine companionship, but the moment a girl began to show signs of taking him seriously he withdrew in alarm.

Without delving too deeply into self-analysis, Duke had a fair idea of what was back of this attitude on his part.

He had never wholly forgotten Julie Hamilton—never completely recovered from the heartache he had suffered when she had rejected his proposal of marriage.

There was something about Julie that stayed with a man. It wasn't that he was consciously remaining a bachelor in hope that she might some day change her mind. He didn't actually yearn for her. But he caught himself thinking of her at odd moments when he should have been thinking of something else. Vague memories which stirred him oddly. Elusive fragments from the past.

Now Julie had turned up in person. After two years. Asking him to help her find another man!

He made a wry face as he stood before his mirror, preparing to meet his date with her. He wore a light gray suit which had cost more than he could afford, and he pulled the map brim of a pearl-gray felt hat low on his forehead.

"You're a sap," he said to his reflection sourly. "Why not let Julie find her own boy friend? Singing at the Polli Parrot? Julie would have to go overboard for a crooner! When she might have had me! Hish! No—that's life! Chin up and shoulders back my bucko!"

He tilted his hat at a slightly more audacious angle and was whistling as he left his apartment.

TEN minutes later, he was being effusively greeted by Julie in the lobby of her hotel.

"Duke! How marvelous you're looking! You're—why, you've grown up since you left home. You look so—so distinguished!"

He grinned. "You've blossomed out yourself, youngster." He eyed her appreciatively. "I'm all of twenty!" she told him. "Why don't people tell me these things?" He mimicked Fred Allen effectively. "And I've been thinking of you as a roly-poly little girl with taffy-colored curls and blue eyes as big as saucers." Julie laughed happily and squeezed his arm. "It's good to see you again, Duke. Did you think I was very bold, calling you up and asking you to take me out?" "I would have heeded you if I'd ever heard about you being here in the city and not calling me up!" Duke told her. Then, lightly, "Well, let's get started if we're going to keep this mysterious rendezvous of yours."

They left the hotel and hailed a taxi.

Julie had decided to tell Duke frankly all about Barry. On the way to the Polli Parrot, she did so, starting at the very beginning when Barry had fainted at her door, then sketching in the chain of events which had brought her to Atlanta.

Duke listened attentively, without interrupting. He was silent for a moment after she finished. Then he said, "I get the picture. You're really gone on this crooning wrangler from old Arizona eh?" "Yes," Julie said quietly. "All right, Julie. If that's the way it is—that's the way it is. I only hope he's worth one of your heartaches."

"He is, Duke. A million of them! Wait until you meet him. You'll see."

"I hope so," Duke grunted. The taxi was pulling up before the lighted entrance of the cafe.

AS they entered, the sound of a piano came through the archway leading into the dining room. Then, the strumming of a guitar picked up the haunting melody—"Wagon Wheels."

Julie's fingers were trembling on Duke's arm as they stopped in the archway and surveyed the room. A spotlight picked out Barry Caldwell, well standing by the piano. He wore a Hollywoodian cowboy outfit, and he was now singing.

His voice was clear and vibrant as Julie remembered it. But something was wrong. He was saving difficulty following the piano accompaniment. He faltered, missed a note, hurried on to catch up. Julie frowned, looked at the pianist—a woman in gypsy costume. As she listened, it seemed to her that the woman was deliberately messing up the time.

Tugging at Duke's arm, she started slowly into the room. As the song ended, she was standing only a short distance away from Barry.

Then, for the first time, he saw her. She smiled tremulously, took a step toward him—then halted abruptly, her smile freezing. He was looking through her without a flicker of recognition. Deliberately, he turned his back on her, and bent over to speak to the pianist.

Julie stood motionless, unable to believe her eyes. She felt Duke take hold of her arm, heard him saying something to her. Then, trembling, she turned and let him lead her to a secluded table in a corner.

MAKING AMERICA STRONG
AMERICAN INDUSTRY STEPS-UP PRODUCTION OF FLYING FORTRESS TO ONE EVERY OTHER DAY
CONSTRUCTION OF ONE FLYING FORTRESS IS A TREMENDOUS TASK...
Each one Requires 30,000 PARTS
6 1/2 MILES OF ELECTRIC WIRING, TWICE THE LENGTH OF THE SAN FRANCISCO-OAKLAND BRIDGE
5,000 FEET OF ALUMINUM ALLOY TUBING, 4 TIMES THE HEIGHT OF THE EMPIRE STATE BUILDING
SOURCE: NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS

This is one of a series of illustrated articles designed to inform the public of the progress being made by American industry in providing the weapons of national defense. The facts presented have been gathered in surveys of leading defense industries and from other authoritative sources.

Some indication of the magnitude of the defense construction job which industry has undertaken is to be found in certain statistics applicable to the building of one single Flying Fortress.

These great arsenals of the air are now being turned out under mass production methods by having drawn up 5500 blueprints before the Aircraft Company.

More than 29,000 parts go into each ship, production of which has been stepped from an original schedule of one every two weeks to one every four days a year ago; to one every other day today. Specialized machine tools and various employee training programs have been factors in this progress.

It takes 29,000 parts to make a single Flying Fortress. Three and a half miles of electric wiring—twice the length of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge—go into each ship. More than 5000 feet of aluminum alloy tubing are required.

Five hundred designers must draw up 5500 blueprints before the Flying Fortress (wing span 104 ft. effective bombing load, five tons) goes into production. Cruising range of the Fortress is some 4000 miles; top speed in excess of 250 miles an hour.

The significance of these figures is emphasized when they are compared with airplane production in the world war. During that conflict, the maximum airplane bomb load was approximately 700 ton-miles. Today it is well over 20,000 ton-miles.

Plane engines ranged up to 400 horsepower at the close of the last war. Today, they reach 2500 horsepower, and planes—such as the Flying Fortress—take as many as four engines.

PINO VISTA DAIRY JOINS NATIONAL INDUSTRY IN CALLING ATTENTION TO ANNUAL NATIONAL DAIRY MONTH

Beginning the first of June, the management of the Pino Vista Dairy began a three months advertising campaign in the Mountain Democrat and the Placerville Republican better to acquaint the people of El Dorado County in the advisability of using more dairy products in their daily diets.

The illustration used in the first advertisement is a reproduction of the beautiful poster and billboard designed by the National Dairy Council and displayed through the entire nation. The poster reads: "Make America Strong by Making Americans Stronger. Dairy (June) Month. We are Co-Operating."

"Under the leadership of the National Dairy Council and organizations representing millions of farmers, milk and dairy products distributors and processors, retail food, drug and variety stores throughout the country, a June Dairy Month campaign to increase consumption of milk and dairy products is under way," Maurice Veerkamp, manager of Pino Vista Dairy and Gold Hill Dairy farms says.

The Pino Vista Plant is now geared for increased summer business, and established a daily service delivery to summer homes and resorts between Placerville and Echo Summit, on June 1st.

"Much of our raw milk is handled direct from the Gold Hill Dairy Farm at Gold Hill, where we maintain a fine herd of Jersey and Guernsey cows. Visitors are welcome at our plant and milking parlor, which is kept as 'neat as a pin.' Approximately 200 gallons of milk is produced daily and is handled through the refrigerated cooling system at the Gold Hill Farm," Mr. Veerkamp said. "Pasteurized milk is handed through the Pino Vista plant in Placerville."

Maurice is associated with his brother, Malcolm, and his father, Louis Veerkamp, in the operation of the business.
